Pastoral Training Institute Scholarships

The Need

Uganda has one of the world's fastest growing Christian populations in the world. Yet the low percentage of men in churches and the growing national orphan-crisis paints a very different picture. Churches are struggling to impact their communities. Pastors lack Biblical & theological grounding. The prosperity-gospel is widespread. Village pastors minister with little or no Biblical instruction and minimal support from other churches.

We believe that the answer to the orphan-crisis in Uganda and around the world is grounded in the local church. New Hope Uganda began its Pastoral Training Institute (PTI) to train and equip rural pastors in the Word of God for them to be effective in ministry, both in their churches and communities. Pastors are also trained in family-based agri-business as a means of provision for their families and a way to impact others.

PTI training takes place one week a month at our fifteen-acre farm, which serves as a macro-farm for training and instructing pastors while also providing sustainable income for running the course. While the income generated from the farm and its various projects (poultry, eggs, & pigs), as well as monthly contributions from the pastors themselves, help to offset basic running costs, it falls short of meeting our needs for the overall cost of the training.

"I have learned to be a real man who pursues God and PTI has also helped me to be effective at bringing the Gospel to the children in our church"

Jumba, PTI student

"Before PTI, I used to interpret Scripture using my opinions and other preachers' opinions, but now I have learned to let Scripture define all things and interpret itself. I thought discipleship was only spending time in Bible study, but now I take time to walk with people, taking time to listen to their fears, pains and joys in order to fully get involved in their lives."

Proposal

We would like to provide scholarships for 20 local pastors. Pastors will still be required to contribute a small portion to their training. We find this to be wise as they are also investing in their training.

$418/student
